Understanding How We Are Compensated for Financial Services

Long-term Care Insurance

What is long-term care insurance?
A long-term care insurance policy is a contract issued through a third-party provider to provide income to address nursing home care, home health care and personal or adult day care for individuals above the age of 65 or with a chronic or disabling condition that needs constant supervision.

How are we paid for our services?
Typically, the insurance company pays Edward Jones a commission at the time you pay the premium for the policy. The commission may vary depending on the insurance company issuing the policy, the coverage provided and the amount of premium paid. Your premium amount depends on the options and level of coverage you select, your age and other factors.

In most cases, the commission that Edward Jones receives for long-term care insurance is a fixed percentage of your annual premium. We also receive annual renewal commissions. In some states, insurance companies are required to pay an equal amount of commissions for a period of years.

Revenue Sharing – Certain insurance companies may pay Edward Jones additional amounts known as revenue sharing. For information about revenue sharing, please see https://www.edwardjones.com/disclosures/revenue-sharing/index.html.

How is your financial advisor compensated?
Your financial advisor receives a percentage of the commissions and renewal commissions the insurance company pays to Edward Jones. The revenue that Edward Jones receives affects Edward Jones’ overall profitability and thus may affect any branch bonus your financial advisor receives.
